How is it relevant to your school context?

Cyber security skills are in high demand in the job market. Introducing these concepts at school prepared the students for future career opportunities and enhanced their critical thinking skills. The program promoted responsible use of technology and social media, guiding students to navigate online environments safely and ethically. The resource person for the session was Assistant Police Inspector Kishor Khadke from the NRI Police Station's Cyber Crime Unit. He provided a comprehensive explanation of cybercrimes and their consequences, offering valuable insights into this pressing issue.

How will you apply it with students in the classroom/beyond?

Use engaging activities, such as simulations or role-playing scenarios, to demonstrate common cyber threats and appropriate responses. For example, students can participate in a mock phishing exercise to identify suspicious emails. Encourage students to work on projects that involve creating security plans for hypothetical organizations or developing presentations on cyber security trends.

What could have been better?

The program was lengthy and should have adhered more closely to the designated time frame.

What was done well?

The planning, organization, and execution of the program were exceptionally well done. The speaker was not only resourceful but also highly engaging, fostering an interactive atmosphere.
